WHY SHOULD YOU ATTEND?

Indonesia is the largest economy in ASEAN with the world's fourth largest population. It holds great economic potential, attracting both multinational and small-and-medium enterprises alike to its large domestic market and availability of resources to establish manufacturing and procurement hubs for global markets.

However, setting up and running effective international trade and customs operations in Indonesia can be challenging for enterprises, especially with the recent increase in import taxes for more than 1,000 goods, currency depreciation pressures and increasingly trade protectionist stance adopted.

With actual first-hand knowledge and experiences on the ground in Indonesia, our local country trainer alongside with our supporting trainers with rich consulting and industry practitioner backgrounds will share with participants not just the regulatory aspects of the trade and customs environment in Indonesia, but also how they have actually managed and resolve the trade and customs issues for their companies and clients alike. Don't miss out the practical insights to unlock potential for your business!

COURSE OUTLINE:

The key topics to be covered are as follows:

- Knowing who's who locally that can impact your trade and customs operations
- Key aspects of the Indonesia trade and customs landscape
 - Key local trade and customs legislation
 - Recent key regulatory developments
 - State of national single window and integrated risk profiling management system
 - Customs declaration process and things to look out
 - Availability of local customs bonded facilities and trade facilitation programs
- Current hot areas of focus by Indonesia Customs when checking companies' international trade activities
- How does Indonesia Customs conduct their audits and investigations and how companies can manage?
- Procurement, manufacturing and trading for foreign entities in Indonesia - Issues to take note
- Practical management of your Indonesia trade and customs operations matter from industry practitioners perspective
- Actual case studies

 Note that the above outline may be subject to changes.*

Course attendees will receive a soft copy of the presentation materials from the course organiser three working days prior to the date of the event. No hard copies will be provided by the course organiser.
